Comma Guidelines

|---|--|
| 1. Use commas before coordination conjunctions (FANBOYS : for, and, nor, but, or, yet, so) when joining two main clauses. | Maria studied for the test, so she got a good grade. Katia enjoys swimming, but she doesn't like jogging. |
| 2. Use commas after sentence elements that appear before the main clause such as introductory phrases, subordinate clauses, and some transitional words. | Entering the room, Rosa greeted everyone with a smile. As she entered the room, Rosa greeted everyone with a smile. |
| 3. Use commas to set off items in a series. | Edwin plays soccer, baseball, and basketball. Michelle bought the groceries, cooked the dinner, and washed the dishes. |
| 4. Use commas to separate nonessential (nonrestrictive) phrases and clauses that appear in the middle of a sentence or at the end of it. (Nonessential or nonrestrictive clauses can be removed from the sentence without changing its basic meaning.) | The blue car, which is parked in front of my house, is my son's new car. I just met Ben's sister, who is thirty years old. The flood, which was unexpected, destroyed many homes. |
| 5. Use commas between coordinate adjectives that come before a noun they modify. | The wilted, dying plant needs to be replaced. Her bright, shining eyes light up her face. |
