New law affects students starting summer 2012

Students need to know about important changes mandated by the California legislature.

Course Attempts
Students may attempt a course no more than three times in their complete academic history at Allan Hancock College. This includes any course for which a student has received any grade including A, B, C, D, F, CR, NC, P, NP or W.

Under specific circumstances, students may request to attempt a course more than three times by submitting an appeal form to the Counseling office. For more information, contact the Counseling office at (805) 922-6966 ext. 3293 or counseling@hancockcollege.edu.

Friday Night Science is coming!

Mark your calendar! The mad scientists at Allan Hancock College are madly planning an outstanding Friday Night Science event May 4, 2012, starting at 6:30 p.m.

"Where Biology Meets Physics!" will focus on how the various colors of light are perceived by the brain to generate optical illusions. Dozens of hands-on experiments will be set up throughout the science building, and will include the fire tornado, bizarre contraptions that create 5,000 volt sparks from running water, some new strobe tricks, and other classics including a slime-making station where kids of all ages can make a batch of slime to take home with them.

Students should always check with an academic counselor before dropping a course, as this may have a negative impact on their record. Contact the Counseling office at (805) 922-6966 ext. 3293 or counseling@hancockcollege.edu.

For more information, call (805) 922-6966 ext. 3202 or email cnunn@hancockcollege.edu.

For more information, contact the Director, Admissions & Records, Adela Esquivel-Swinson at (805) 922-6966 ext. 3272 or aessequivelswinson@hancockcollege.edu.

International students heading to AHC

Students from Copenhagen Hospitality College will arrive in Solvang in August to attend Hancock College classes. It is part of the first international student program in the college's history. The program will focus on culinary and hospitality topics. Some of the classes scheduled for the 15-week program will be open to local students.

For more information about the program, contact Academic Dean Ardis Neilson at aneilson@hancockcollege.edu.

Book collection focuses on world cultures

A new multicultural collection at the Hancock library strives to call attention to the diverse cultures that students are exposed to every day on campus and some they may have never even heard about.

The collection is located in the Santa Maria campus library. Items may be checked out by Hancock faculty and students and members of Friends of the Library. For more information, contact the library at (805) 922-6966 ext. 3224.

A Title V Hispanic Serving Institution grant from the United States Department of Education funded the new collection.

“Wired Weekend” filmmaking challenge

Create a six-minute film masterpiece in 48 hours. That's the purpose of the fourth annual “Wired Weekend 2-Day Filmmaking Challenge” organized by the Allan Hancock College film and video program.

The whirlwind weekend begins at 4 p.m. Friday, April 27. Student-led teams have 48 hours to turn a partial script into a finished, six-minute product. First prize is $500, second prize is $250.

The competition is open to high school and college students and the general public in San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara counties. Go to www.wired-weekend.com for details.

Wired Weekend is sponsored by Marriott Santa Barbara and Tri City Sound Chorus (a chapter of Sweet Adelines International).

For more information, contact instructor Robin Smith at (805) 922-6966 ext. 3361 or rsmith@hancockcollege.edu.
