These prompts should be completed with faculty during a department/program meeting. All faculty should have an opportunity for input for the prompts. You can use the Program Review Guide for information on topics to discuss for the prompts.

After you have finished responding to the standards, you will need to create the objectives and resource requests. The objectives are the plans of action that are created from the program review narrative. An objective is a statement of activity that will take place in order to complete planning. For example, if your program review analysis and responses indicate that your program has accessibility issues for female students, you might write an objective like, "Increase female student enrollment by 20% to promote equity among the program's student body." Then you would need resources in order complete this objective. Resource requests are then attached to objectives. You cannot make a resource request without an objective.
